CIO Cloud Summit Announces Strategic Partnership With CloudTweaks

October 26, 2010 – The CIO Cloud Summit team is pleased to announce that it has formed a strategic partnership with CloudTweaks, an online news media site that provides a variety of articles and resources on cloud computing topics and trends.

CloudTweaks, with a team of content creators from around the globe, including CTOs, CEOs, cloud bloggers, engineers and technology enthusiasts, delivers in-depth articles, the latest news, interviews and other valuable content on cloud computing to a growing audience of technology professionals, including representatives government agencies, financial institutions, technology firms and Fortune 500 organizations. Established in 2009, CloudTweaks.com is one of the fastest growing cloud computing media sites on the Web.

“I am very pleased to be partnering with CloudTweaks for the CIO Cloud Summit. The information and articles that CloudTweaks provides on their site is exactly what our CIO and technology executive audience needs in order to succeed in the workplace and ensure that their cloud computing projects are successful,” said Glenn Willis, EVP, CIO Cloud Summit & CEO, CDM Media.

The CIO Cloud Summit will bring together CIOs and IT executives who are exploring, implementing or have completed cloud computing projects at their organizations. To be held April 10-13, 2011, the technology event is an exclusive opportunity for IT leaders to attend educational sessions, network with their peers, and learn about the latest cloud computing solutions in a relaxed, yet focused business setting.

The CIO Cloud Summit agenda includes open forums, think tanks, analyst Q&A sessions, and panel discussions. The sessions are designed to encourage in-depth conversations, allowing attendees to share best practices and ideas as well as make critical business contacts.
