CIO Cloud Summit Enters into Partnership with Data Center Journal

February 15, 2011 – The CIO Cloud Summit team announced today that it has entered into a strategic partnership with Data Center Journal, an online portal that covers the latest information on data center IT, facilities and design.

The CIO Cloud Summit, June 14-16, 2011 in Scottsdale, Arizona, will bring together CIOs and senior technology executives from various verticals who are currently planning, implementing or want to optimize cloud computing at their organizations. The event is an opportunity for attendees to network with their peers, attend educational sessions and learn about new technology solutions.

Data Center Journal, www.datacenterjournal.com, provides readers with in-depth articles, a weekly newsletter, videos, expert blogs and white papers on the latest industry topics and trends. The site also includes property, event and job listings, as well as press releases and educational opportunities. Through the social site My Data Center Space, the Data Center Journal allows registered members to network, connect with colleagues and other professionals, share videos and pictures, and have in-depth conversations about data center pain points, best practices and trends.

The CIO Cloud Summit agenda will allow attending executives to discuss the latest cloud computing topics and trends in a relaxed, yet focused environment. The event is an opportunity for executives to have in-depth conversations, share ideas, discuss current and upcoming projects, and share best practices. Topics on this year's agenda include building a private cloud, compliance in the cloud, the future of cloud storage technology, cloud computing integration and interoperability, and the rise of cloud services brokerages.

About Data Center Journal

The Data Center Journal is the only magazine portal for the data center industry that provides information and resources for the three groups that help make a data center successful: Information Technology, Facilities and Design.

The Data Center Journal addresses the issues that affect the daily operation, design and business of a data center. The Journal's unbiased editorials cover the entire data center. The Data Center Journal's newest sites include www.datacenter.tv and the Expert Blogs site www.datacenterjournal.com/blogs. It offers vendor directories, classifieds, white papers and a full industry calendar. My Data Center Space is a networking tool for data center professionals found exclusively at www.datacenterjournal.com
